The Holocaust Postal History and document Collection originally assembled by Ken Lawrence and now owned and expanded by the Spungen Foundation will be the centerpiece of a week long Colloquium on the Holocaust taking place starting on Wednesday September 29th at the Northfield Mount Hermon School in Gill, MA. Now supplementing the philatelic content in the collection are various currencies used in ghettos and concentration camps as well as the counterfeit British notes produced by prisoners. Lectures, films and discussions relating to the Holocaust take place throughout the week.

The school's location is just south of the Vermont and New Hampshire borders right off of I-91. Most of the events are open to the public and are detailed on the school's website, www.nmhschool.org. They are asking that guests call the campus in advance so they have an idea of the numbers attending.
