Concentration Camp Buchenwald

A January 20, 1945, letter written in Serbo-Croatian from Buchenwald prisoner Stjepan Salaj's wife on their farm in Yugoslavia. En route to Germany, the letter was opened for censorship at Vienna. Upon arrival, the camp censor removed the stamp to check for a hidden message, and splashed the contents with a chemical to check for invisible ink.

A February 27, 1945, 30-reichsmark international money order from Drachten, Netherlands, to prisoner G.J. Blauw at Buchenwald, which arrived at Weimar on March 28, 1945, but probably did not reach the camp; by then mass confusion reigned as Allied armed forces approached.

TOUNDATION

disano dal 1/20. godine 1.945 Ivage moj Itelica preze moga proanza from od mere morogo od ma mojega i javim da smo sim a ostali adravi ali ja nisam ti anas boli pomoci nen dala sve sto mije najmilje a hado bile sagnlila onda bimi mozda dobni Boze damuse sur vratis grozog mulos hucici i ostalos objeci ahaho to dami ti nista pises milha je dobila fabyanour 0485 i ja mislim da si

S COUNDANCE

a za en svoje prodoch već je odovno bilo po deset gracu si obaviti sile kuputo nesto Dragici Dragi stelica dragica sanja su, tebe svahu noc prsi odmok nemam vremenot vise pozdravla tetroja nexaborarna seno i tvoja jedina cerho Draguo i modeni dragec alogom dovidenja. 245/6

