

Great Britain's Secret War against the Axis

Bletchley Park

Sorina Perceval entered Germany in December 1942 to visit her son Wolf. Whether that was a mother's brave (or foolish) act, or a secret mission (if so, for which side?), is not publicly known. Another son Horst was killed on the Russian front in 1943.

This April 29, 1943, cover from Sorina to Dick Perceval is addressed to him at the English Speaking Union Club, 37 Charles Street, London, S.W.1, a previously unrecorded undercover address.

A German censor at Berlin applied a chemical to the envelope and letter to check for secret writing in invisible ink. A British censor inserted a mimeographed form warning the recipient not to heed a request for photographs. Upon delivery at London, the forwarding label to the secret Bletchley address was added, taking the letter to Perceval's post.

BRITISH POSTAL CENSORSHIP

P.C.177a

~~Enclosure~~with reference to request for photographs, please not allow

The despatch of printed matter, photographs, snapshots, picture-postcards (including any cards bearing any photograph or illustration, and Christmas or other greeting cards), calendars, drawings, maps, plans, prints and literature for the blind to certain countries is prohibited, except under Permit.

Permits have, however, been granted to the principal book-sellers, newsagents, stationers and photographers for the classes of goods in which they deal and despatch should be made through them.

Permits will be granted to private individuals only in very exceptional circumstances, when application should be made in Great Britain to the Chief Officer, Permit Branch, Postal & Telegraph Censorship, Aintree, Liverpool, or in Northern Ireland to Chief Officer, Permit Branch, Postal & Telegraph Censorship, 119, University Street, Belfast.

N.B. This slip must not be enclosed in letters leaving the United Kingdom.

SPUNGEN
FAMILY
6649
FOUNDATION