Sam Harris is one of the youngest Holocaust survivors. Born in Deblin, Poland, in 1935, he was just four years old when his town was bombed and he witnessed death and destruction for the first time. Having lost his parents and most of his family, Sam hid for two-and-a-half years in Deblin and Czestochowa concentration camps. Had he been found, he would have been killed.

Sam, although an orphan when he arrived in the U.S. at age twelve, was filled with hope about the possibilities awaiting him. This optimism, today still so much a part of Harris' upbeat personality, is infectious and inspirational. Speaking to thousands of children and adults annually, he keeps the gifts of freedom and the seemingly endless possibilities at the forefront of his life, while simultaneously honoring the memories of the millions who were murdered during the Holocaust. A successful businessman and the recipient of many awards, Sam Harris was the instrumental force behind the construction of the Illinois Holocaust Museum and Educational Center, of which he is president emeritus.

Admission is free. Donations are welcomed. For more information on this and other events, please visit www.candlesholocaustmuseum.org or call 812.234.7881.

This event is made possible in part by generous support from the Florence and Laurence Spungen Family Fdn and a matching grant from Indiana Humanities in cooperation with the National Endowment for the Humanities.
