1. Allison Young

Hello, my name is Allison Young and I am a senior at Billings West High School. I have been lucky enough to grow up in Billings, Montana where I have grown mentally, physically, and spiritually by engaging in my school and community.

High school has been a great time where I have gotten to participate in the many things that I love to do. I have run cross country, played softball, and played the viola in West's Philharmonic Orchestra. I am not exceptional at any of these three things, but I have always worked hard to improve myself and I have received such joy from doing them. I have been a volunteer at The Western Heritage Center and at Faith Chapel. At the Western Heritage Center I helped with creating an exhibit about the Vietnam War based on the stories of Montana veterans. It was such a cool experience. At the church, I have gotten to lead middle school students by teaching them about God's love. In high school I have learned a lot. Most importantly, I have learned the love of God. It is because of my relationship with God that I have been able to let go of my fears and walk out my purpose. I know that I am capable of doing great things.

I have a passion for helping people and I have fallen in love with healthcare. I also love the idea of healing people and making a difference in such an important way. For this reason, I am so excited to go to college. My plan is to stay in Montana and attend either The University of Montana or Montana State University for nursing. I have not completely decided on nursing and I am still exploring other options like Physical Therapy and Pre-Med. I want to stay in Montana so I can be close to my family while still enjoying all that college has to offer. I love the outdoors and I intend on being a part of either college's outdoor recreation club. I also would love to be involved in the school's Honors College and religious clubs.

I am so excited to come on this trip because I want to hear about the Holocaust from the people who experienced it. I think that the best way to learn is from real stories from real people.

Everyone has a story. These stories of Holocaust survivors, filled with extreme sadness and hope, are especially important. We cannot live in a world where these stories are not told.

2. Lindsey Weber

Hi, my name is Lindsey Weber, and I am a senior at Billings West High School! I am very involved in clubs, academics, and leadership activities in my hometown Billings, Mt.

I love participating in speech and debate as well as business professionals of america. I have always been very passionate about public speaking and presenting knowledge that I obtain. Being a debater defines me as a person and requires a lot of work and practice. Business Professionals of America allows me to use my skills of public speaking, I learn from debating, and apply them to the business world, and for all aspects of my future career. I love learning the leadership and speaking demands that these clubs place on me, and being able to show others how to use these skills in all aspects of school and how everything will be continue to be used during life after school.

For college, I am hoping to go somewhere that has a great business school. I would like to major in business and minor in political science, and then go to law school after. I aspire to become a business attorney. Right now, I am considering schools within Montana, so be close to home, however far enough away to be able to be more independent in my adult life.

The reason I wanted to come on this trip is to be taught about the Holocaust and be able to have a better understanding from people who have experience it. Learning about it in a school setting and outside setting is important, however, learning about the effect it had on these people is extremely important. Learning the historical part of what happened is just scratching the surface of the knowledge to be taught. It is important to respect those affected, and I believe the best way is through education and listening to what they have to say.

3. Lauryn Tecca

Hi, my name is Lauryn Tecca. I'm a senior at Billings West High School. I am actively involved in Speech and Debate, music, and volunteer work. Speech and Debate is one of the best things I have ever been involved in. I joined as a freshmen and then started Extemporaneous Speaking my junior year and fell in love with it. Being involved in this event has made me one hundred times more aware of my surroundings. I love talking about current events and trying to make the world a little better. When I'm not competing, I spend my time working on music. I've played the trumpet since I was 10, and I love every minute of it. Being in band is the best part of my school day. I have had a lot of volunteer opportunities through music, like conducting a fifth grade chime choir.

For college, I have two radically different plans. The most probable is to stay in Billings and obtain a nursing degree through MSUB. Science is one of my best subjects, so anything medical interests me a lot. I adore working with children, so I would prefer to be in pediatrics if I stay. My other plan is all the way across the country. I am currently trying to get into Columbia's Political Science program. I am incredibly passionate about politics and would love to go into journalism afterwards. I hope to stay in music and find some way to keep speaking in college.

The reason I wanted to come on this trip is to hear about the Holocaust on a more personal level. I want to learn from a source that I have never had the opportunity to hear from. I would love to expand my horizons and soak up all the information I possibly can. Being able to hear these survivors is an incredible experience that I might not have ever again.

4. Olivia Price

My name is Olivia Price and I go to Billings West high school! I love being active and being outdoors. I played basketball for three years and will have participated in track for three as well. Being active is something I do on a daily basis. I wake up before the sun comes up every day to go to the gym/take a workout class before school. It truly is my happy place. I also work at the coffee shop near me. I work about 20 hours a week, after or before school, varying on the week. I love working because it gives me the opportunity to learn new skills that I am able to incorporate into my daily life. And on top of that, it has blessed me with so many amazing friends that I believe will last a lifetime. On a different note, I also love traveling and drawing. Drawing is something that I do a lot when I'm too tired to workout! When drawing, I mainly just do sketches without color & don't have a specific style. I do not get to travel much but will take any opportunity I get to leave Billings and see the rest of the world. I plan on doing a ton of traveling as I get older and hope to study abroad.

After I graduate high school I plan on studying nutrition sciences. As of right now I want to be a nutritionist or dietitian. My reason for this is because I care a lot about my own health. I am always watching what I put into my body and being cautious of certain ingredients when buying food. As I said above, I would love to contribute to helping other people do the same thing by making it easier to realize how important eating nutritious food is for the body. I believe eating healthy benefits people in every way possible and think everyone should take care of themselves to help them strive mentally and physically. Changing my eating habits has completely flipped my life around and I would love to experience it doing the same magic for others!

I found this trip really intriguing because I heard all about it from my sister (Grace Price). After asking her many questions and learning about what we will be doing, I knew I had to try to go. This is a once and a lifetime opportunity to learn and visit many places that I know close to nothing about. I want to be more educated on The Holocaust and it would be unforgettable to meet anyone who experienced it. Having a firsthand experience with a Holocaust survivor is something that does not happen every day. It will be interesting to learn about it from different perspectives as well. I believe it will deepen my understanding from what I have learned in school. It's very important to me that the stories (that I will be lucky enough to hear) are heard and never forgotten!

5. Emma Hardy

Hello, my name is Emma Hardy! I enjoy participating in athletics and care deeply about my academics. I also enjoy playing the piano and being an active member in my community. This year I am a senior at Billings West High School.

I am an active member of HOSA-Future Health Professionals and I engage in volunteer service through the program. I also babysit and grocery shop for the Her Campaign, a refuge and safe house for women who have experienced sexual trafficking and exploitation. I have also been elected historian for the National Honors Society where I coordinate and plan meetings for volunteer service opportunities. Finally, I have participated in cross country for 3 years and played piano for 9. I love being outside and enjoying nature, be it skiing, hiking, or running. I also love biking and walking, and could spend hours wandering the trails near my house.

My plans for college are mostly undecided for right now, but I'm most likely going to attend a college somewhat near my hometown, Billings Montana. I have a great love for researching and learning and I especially love YouTube educational videos. At the moment, I believe I want to go into something medical and perhaps become a physician's assistant or a pharmacist. Although my major has a great possibility of changing, I know I will continue to learn and research my entire life.

It would be an honor to be able to hear survivors' stories and learn to more clearly understand the events leading up and pertaining to the Holocaust. I would love to hear a different and invaluable perspectives on this event which I have only learned about from schools and movies. Hearing a survivor speak would be amazing perviagle that would help me broaden my understanding of the tragedy that took place and perhaps help me reframe the way I view modern world issues.

6. Megan Gemmill

Hello, my name is Megan Gemmill! I am a senior at Billings West High School and I am an active individual throughout my community and school, with passions in academics, music, and athletics. One of my biggest enjoyments is running. I have played various sports since a young age, but running has been my favorite. I have ran cross country and track all four years of high school and through this sport have formed some of my closest friendships and relationships with my teammates and coaches. It has given me the opportunity to travel around the state and compete. Over time running has been a good way to grow as an individual both physically and mentally and has taught me how to compete, challenge myself, be a team player, form relationships, build confidence, become a leader, and overcome obstacles in life both in the races or beyond. Besides running, I love staying active through hiking and skiing. I spend my summers and winters primarily in the mountains enjoying these activities with my family, which has been one of the best parts of growing up somewhere as beautiful as Montana. I have also played the violin since I was ten years old and have enjoyed being a part of my school orchestra throughout my high school years. Getting new music, especially holiday music, and traveling on music tours have been some of my favorite parts of being in the music program. Besides all of these, I enjoy being in clubs like Key Club, NHS, and HOSA, where I am given the opportunity to reach out to individuals and do community service in the Billings area.

I am hoping to pursue a major in either Nursing or Pre-Med in the future, but my plans for where I will attend college are currently undecided. As of now, I am becoming a Certified Nursing Assistant and am hoping that this will show me whether or not nursing is something I am passionate about. I have always been interested in anatomy and medicine and have enjoyed taking classes that have included these in the course. I have a heart to get to know and help people and I believe that nursing would be the perfect profession to include that with medicine. I have been an honors student throughout high school and have enjoyed challenging myself to learn and grow by taking rigorous courses. I hope that by attending college as a nursing student in the future I will be able to continue my growth as a student and challenge myself more.

The reason I wanted to come on this trip was to learn about the Holocaust from the perspective of individuals with experience and to hear their story from them directly. It has been important to learn about the events of the holocaust from classes, teachers, books, and movies, but those only go so far. I want to meet the people who were directly impacted by the horrific events that took place and broaden my understanding of how such an atrocious affair starts and escalates. I hope to become more educated on the topic while also respecting the individuals that were affected.

7. Lillian Fix-Brierton

My name is Lillian Fix-Brierton, you can just call me Lilli, or whatever is easiest! I am extremely active in sports and have a habit of pushing myself academically. I'm a senior at Billings West High and will be graduating a semester early.

I have spent the last six years playing junior roller derby and plan to continue to pursue this sport into my adult years. Playing roller derby competitively has been one of the greatest experiences of my life, the diversity in the people I've met as well as the friends I've made all over the world have created lasting memories. I have spent seven years playing the cello and while I no longer play in school I still play whenever possible.

I have not made a final decision in regards to college but plan to pursue a career in nursing or botany. I have been looking into schools in either Arizona or Oregon as I have family in both states and will still maintain close contact with relatives at home. I will have a gap year as I work full time in order to save for college and the possibility of moving to another state.

This trip interests me because I think every story needs to be told from those who have experienced it, textbooks and statistics are cold and do not have the names and faces to truly make people understand what happened. I believe simply reading about something and discussing an experience are two vastly different things.

8. Carly Byrne

Hi, my name is Carly Byrne! I live in Billings Montana and am currently a senior at West High School.

My high school experience has been enriched with academics, clubs and community service. I am currently a member of the National Honors Society at my school. I was admitted for my high academic achievement, including honors, college and Advanced Placement classes.

Outside of the classroom, I have been a part of the Business Professionals of America club for three years and have progressed from holding the Membership Director office my junior year to being President this year. I have also contributed over one hundred hours towards Key Club over my four years of membership, which serves our greater community. This year, I hold the office of Key Club President. I have a love for music and have been a member of my school's top auditioned orchestra for three years. Over the past four summers I have volunteered at a local hospital, taking a coffee cart around to all the patients, family members, and staff. For two summers, I participated in our local Reading Rocks program, reading with underprivileged kids while also being involved in Park to Park Program, mentoring a child every week. Montana's Governor and First Lady chose me to be involved in their 2019 Youth Leadership Program, where I will work with peers to address the overwhelming problem of childhood hunger across my state. For the past two years, I have worked part time at a daycare where I am a childcare worker and a swim instructor.

After graduating in May, I plan to attend the University of Montana to pursue a degree in Business. I have been accepted into the Davidson Honors College where I will continue to focus on my high academic standards. I am excited to build upon my work in community service that I have established during high school. Go Griz!

I have always been interested in learning about the Holocaust. The standard classroom curriculum I have learned doesn't reach the level of understanding I feel one needs. Survivor Week will take that education to a new level. I truly believe the only way our world can move on and prevent more Genocides from happening is through educating our youth.

Understanding the trauma and real events told from people who have gone through it as well as getting to observe their resiliency and promise for the future. I hope to be a tool for my generation and future generations to never forget, but also to strive for a better tomorrow.

9. Cheyenne Aldrich

My name is Cheyenne Aldrich, but most of my favorite people call me mom or Mrs. Aldrich. I have been a social studies educator for the past 12 years. I currently teach US history, Montana history, Economics and Psychology. In each of these subject areas, I strive to challenge students to grapple with what is just and what our responsibility is in creating a more just society.

I am deeply grateful for the opportunity to engage in this important and challenging work and to share my passion for social studies education with my school community. My endearing commitment to social studies education has provided me many opportunities and experiences that I am continually humbled by including being selected this past summer as the Gilder Lehrman History Teacher of the Year for the state of Montana. I find hope and inspiration daily in the voices of the young people that I serve.

When not in the classroom, I value the time that I am able to share with my best friend and closest confidant, Brand, my husband for the past 16 years. Together we have been blessed with three children, Aidan (15), Liam (12), Kenley (9) and the queen of our hearts, our Havanese Cleopatra.

10. Rob Stanton

Hello, my name is Rob Stanton and I have been teaching for the past 26 years. I was a PE teacher for the first 9 years of my career and currently teaching sophomore world history and a genocide class for seniors. I am also the head track and field and football coach at our school. I have been lucky to have been a part of 10 state championships at Billings West.

I have been teaching genocide classes for the past 10 years and typically have around 160 ready to graduate seniors taking the course. I
